ple showed up to break bread with the Kelly clan. Members of Boy Scouts of America Troop 36, based in Laurel, helped this year by sheltering people with large umbrellas as they made their way from their cars into the Legion hall.

Kelly stresses that the event is for everyone, not just for those who otherwise not be able to afford to have a lavish Thanksgiving dinner.

"It's nice to be with other people if you are away from home or don't have a family," she said.

The tradition started in 1984, with the first dinner at Mr. C's Restaurant in Bay St. Louis, which her daughter and son-in-law, Beth and Cecil Scarbrough, owned at the time.

After the Scarbrough's closed Mr. C's, Kelly said, the American Legion graciously offered its facilities to help continue the tradition.

Several people volunteer their time, services, money and food to the effort, she said, and local stores from one end of the Coast to the other contribute food and supplies.

"It's about giving back to the community," she said. "They should give back to the community, and all I do is allow them to do that. We're helping each other to help ourselves."

"You find unique things that no one else has," she said.

Pie Parson, owner of Sol Garden on Main Street, said she came to the shop Friday morning just to straighten up, but ended up helping her employee because of the steady flow of customers.

He said he has heavy shopping from now until New Year's Eve.

For merchants on Coleman Avenue in Waveland, shoppers were not as numerous on Friday.

"It's not a doorbuster today," said Kathy Penn, owner of That Cute Little Shop. "Everyone hits the malls."

She said Friday was a little bit busier than usually, but she usually gets the bulk of her holiday shoppers during the last two weeks before Christmas.

"We sell everything those last two weeks," she said. "We're ready, and we're loaded."

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

As Christmas nears, many special programs take place in our area.

Among those included Pass Christian's Christmas in the Pass which is set for Friday, Dec. 5.

War Memorial Park is the location with the event beginning at 5:30 p.m.

There will be caroling by the Pass Christian Elementary students followed by the arrival of Santa who will pass out candy canes to the children.

There will be a Christmas parade though the Pass which will include the Pass Christian High's band.

Pass merchants will celebrate with an open house and there will also be a Lighted Boat parade.

Church and school choirs will be singing carols throughout the evening at Market and Second streets.

There will be local school and civic groups participating with booths as fund-raisers offering delicious foods and drinks throughout the downtown.

Sounds like Friday will be a fun night across the Bay in the Pass.

Looking for something different to do over the holidays, why not visit the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre's production of "The Piano Lesson."

A Pulitzer Prize winning drama by August Wilson is set for Dec. 5, 6 and 12-14. Show times is 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14. Admission is $12 adults, $10 seniors and $7 for students 17 and below.

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre is located at 201 Boardman Ave., off Dunbar in Cedar Point.

Hancock County's Library System has several very interesting events to take place with in the next few days.

On Friday, Dec. 5, the Pearlinton Library's "Celebrate the Season" is set from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

There will be Christmas trees decorated by students, a visit from Santa, holiday caroling and storytelling.

Gingerbread house decorating is also scheduled at the Pearlinton Library.

In Bay St. Louis on Sunday, Dec. 7, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock Library, the gigantic Holiday Tree Gala will take place.

If you haven't visited the library's headquarters in the Bay for the Holiday Tree Gala, you do not know what you are missing.

Santa, and all types of special entertainment will be at this big event.

On display will be some of the most beautifully decorated Christmas trees as the competition is stiff.

There will be some 60 outstanding Christmas trees on display.

Moving further down the road, on Tuesday, Dec. 9 at 6 p.m., the Kiln Community Tree Lighting will take place at the Kiln Library.

This is always an extra special night in the Kiln, and yes Santa is scheduled to be there to take Christmas wish lists from the youngsters too.

On Saturday, Dec. 13, the city of Waveland and area merchants will roll out the Red Carpet for the annual Waveland Festival of Lights.

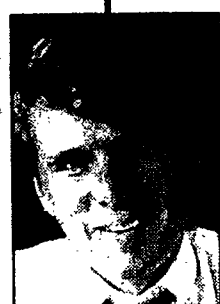

This all begins at 5 p.m. at the Waveland Public Library and spreads down Coleman Avenue. As the date nears we will be telling you more.

When one door closes, another door opens for South Mississippi

Throughout the Veterans Affairs (VA) health care system, a significant backlog of veterans, estimated at 66,000, are waiting up to six months to get appointments with VA doctors. This is unacceptable.

We are experiencing similar problems here in Mississippi. Unfortunately, because of budget shortfalls, the VA is embarking on a nationwide effort to close or consolidate VA medical facilities. The VA proposes to close or realign the Gulfport VA Hospital with the Biloxi VA Hospital.

This passed Veterans Day I voiced a proposal that I feel addresses the tight budgeting situation of VA operations in Mississippi while strengthening our overall educational ability in the southern half of our state. The President of the University of Southern Mississippi, Dr. Shelby Thames and I are exploring the possibility of having USM partner with the VA and the Gulf Coast medical community to develop new and unprecedented health care services for our veterans and other South Mississippi citizens. If the Gulfport VA facility is moved to Biloxi, we envision using the Gulfport VA campus as a USM training hospital for veterans.

There is no greater issue for our veterans than the accessibility to the quality health care that they have earned. They made great personal sacrifices to serve our nation and they deserve the best healthcare we can provide.

Average Americans worry about things like a new wrinkle on their face, another inch on their waistline, or a few new gray hairs on their head. I recently visited young Americans at Walter Reed Hospital who just days ago were perfectly healthy young athletes, but because

Appointing super. brings controversy

Dear Editor:

The decision to elect or appoint our school superintendent has become a controversial issue.

Some people have expressed a reluctance to give up their right to vote on an issue or political position. It is heartening to see that people of this community value their rights and liberties. I spent part of my early adult life defending our rights and would not ask anyone to compromise on them without just cause.

Should the Department of Justice suspend their stay on the statute that would allow us to appoint our Superintendent, it would not take effect until the superintendent's (elect) term expires in 2008. By then there will be at least three and possibly four new board members.

The delay in its implementation should negate any arguments about a power grab by a few elected board members. The process of selecting our superintendent would be through a committee of volunteers from our administrators, teachers, staff and parents. The board would choose from candidates forwarded by the selection committee.

Let's face facts. Every state in the union that enjoys higher educational achievement than Mississippi appoints their Superintendent of education. Approximately 99 percent of the school districts in the U.S. are able to do a national search for the best education administrator they can find.

We're part of the 1 percent and our choices are limited to local county residents willing to mount an expensive campaign to get elected.

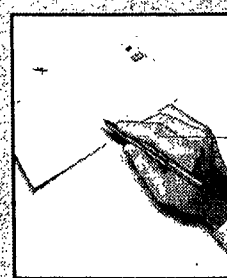

We have voluntarily limited ourselves while others are able to take advantage of a vast resource of qualified candidates from highly successful school districts.

We have had some success in recent years. We

Our letters policy

The Sea Coast Echo welcomes comments from its readers. Letters must be signed and include address or telephone number. Letters should be brief, preferably typewritten and double-spaced. even have a couple Level 5 schools while the rest are a respectable Level 4. For some, this is reason enough to maintain the status quo. Our recent superintendents have fulfilled their obligations to the district. They have been able to meet district goals by placing students needs at the top of their priority list. These superintendents have been voted out of office, not for lack of successes, but usually for a variety of actions and decisions that took place in the political arena.

The Hancock County School District has made impressive gains in the last 10 years. We rank well against other districts in our state. We must look beyond our border to try to emulate the best districts in the nation. Part of their formula for success is hiring the best Superintendent they can find.

Our educational competition is no longer just across district lines or even other states. We must begin thinking about the quality of our education and how it compares with other nations around the world.

they answered our nation's call to defend us, and as a direct result of their service to us, are now missing eyes, arms, and legs.

This new generation of Americans are veterans of the War on Terror. They are coming home, as so many have before them, with physical and emotional wounds that may require treatment for the rest of their lives. Although it is impossible to truly and fully repay the debt we owe to them, the facility that Dr. Thames and I envision will help to do just that while expanding educational opportunities.

This is no small undertaking, but it is far from impossible. The proposed teaching hospital is already a hospital. Health care is already a strong part of USM's present educational offerings.

Our goal is to make it even stronger. USM educates more nurses in the state than anyone, has a medical technology program that is world-renowned and educates hundreds of pre-medical and pre-dental students who have gone on to serve our state.

This teaching hospital is the natural progression of USM's continuing effort to meet the needs of the ever-growing population in South Mississippi.

This plan would provide an opportunity for the state's aspiring medical students to get the training they need here on the coast.

A facility of this nature would help serve current and future medical needs. The closing of the Gulfport VA would have a negative impact not only for veterans, but all of South Mississippi.

South Mississippi has actively promoted itself as a retirement community, particularly for veterans and military retirees.

A lot of these veterans retire in this area because of the Medical facilities at Keesler Air Force Base and the VA Hospitals in Biloxi and Gulfport. There is no question that the health care needs of our veterans and other citizens of South Mississippi will grow by leaps and bounds in the future.

In addition, apart from veterans, Mississippi and our entire nation has an aging population that will increase the demand for medical care.

In the next 20 years the population of age 65 or older in Mississippi is projected to grow by 55 percent. Already, 10 percent of the total workforce in our state is employed in the health care field.

To meet this need for nurses, medical technicians and other health care professionals, we must take action now and not wait until these health care needs overwhelm our capacity to address them.

The University of Southern Mississippi is uniquely positioned to meet those needs. I look forward to working with the Institutes of Higher Learning, the Department of Veterans Affairs, USM, the governor and our legislators to ensure that this opportunity is fully examined and given proper consideration.

If we can improve the health care of our veterans and other South Mississippians, then we should do it.

In Memory of

JoAnn McCullouch Cuevas
 Nov. 30, 1944 - Jan. 29, 1990

Death is the end of earthly life, but because of Christ, JoAnn's death has a positive meaning. Through Baptism, JoAnn had already "died with Christ" sacramentally. In order to live a new life, JoAnn died in Christ's grace on January 29, 1990. Physical death completes our incorporation into Him in His redeeming act. - Taken from the Catechism of the Catholic Church.

Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord. And let perpetual light shine upon them. May they rest in peace. Amen. May their souls and the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.

Hancock Chamber
Announces Annual Membership Meeting Date

To recognize Hancock Chamber volunteers and sponsors, the 2003
Chamber Board of Directors is hosting an Annual Meeting on Friday,

December 12 at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis. During the meeting, members will be presented the 2003

Annual Report and review
the 2004 Program of Work.

The 2004 Board of Directors will also be introduced. The event starts at 7:30am with a breakfast buffet and the program will conclude at 9am. The cost is $15 per person. To make your reservation for this important meeting, call: 467-9048.

During the meeting, the membership will also hear from the By-laws committee regarding recommendations to amend the By-laws. Members will be asked to cast their vote for or against the changes. "This is your opportunity to become actively involved in the business of the Chamber,"

said Chamber President John P. Baxter, "and I sincerely hope you will."

Baxter said that 2003
has been a year of bricks, mortar and marketing for the Hancock Chamber. He said it has also been a year of planning to prepare for the future. During the meeting, Baxter says members will also learn about three important strategic plans to grow what will soon become known as "the Stennis Region", to take us through 2010. "The Chamber will play a major leadership role to bring these plans together toward implementation," he said.

"To accomplish these goals,

we need more leaders
involved at every level, working in partnership

because none of us is as smart as all of us," said Baxter.

If you have ever been to experience can be addictive.

Visit the New Columbia

Auction Company in Bay St.

Many say there is simply nothing quite like the thrill of finding something you want and then bidding against others who want the same thing. And, you don't have to be a seasoned auction attendee. But is there any truth to the old story about the person who attended an auction, scratched his nose and came home with an item he did not intend to buy? Pay no heed to that myth, says

Mary Lynne and Kenny Statham who recently opened the Columbia

Auction Company in Bay St.
Louis with one of Mississippi's leading auc-tionneers---Jennings Gilmore.

"People who have never been to an auction before should give it a try," said

Mary Lynne. "Don't be intimidated just go and have fun!" And, you will have the chance to do just that on Sunday, December 7. The Auction starts at 2pm, so come to get your feet wet and get a feel for how they are conducted.

The Columbia Auction Company offers a highly professional auction service and quality antiques and

DWGA Nines Invitational Scottish Fall Fling

THE SEA COAST ECHO

There were seventy-five participants in the Diamondhead Women's Golf Association Nines annual invitational with Pass Christian Isles Country Club and Slidell's Pinewood Country Club.

The theme for this year's event was a "Scottish Fall Fling". The format was a "meet and greet" breakfast followed by a 9 hole scramble with lunch and an award presentation immediately thereafter.

The highlight of the event was when chairperson, Dianne Ackerman, surprised the ladies with bagpipes, Elizabeth Campbell of Gulfport, who marched from the front entrance of the club to the breakfast ballroom playing a Scottish march. The bagpiper was immediately greeted by applause and a standing ovation by some very surprised attendees. After playing a trilogy of Scottish songs, Dianne introduced her to the group.

Elizabeth dressed in the Campbell plaid, then explained each piece of her attire. All attendees were then requested to sing "God Bless America" as Elizabeth accompanied them on the bagpipe. Just prior to tee time, the "Nines" and guests marched out of the clubhouse, led by Elizabeth, to the putting green for a review of the tournament rules by pro, Hoppy Smith. Following the rules, Elizabeth played "Amazing Grace" in memory of former members, and in honor of members who couldn't participate due to illness. As the ladies drove to their assigned starting holes, the bagpiper continued to play until the group disappeared from view. Sponsor for the bagpiper was Rodney Ackerman.

Decorations on the front of the Cardinal course included "Scotty" dogs on each of the laddie's tee boxes.

Approaching the number 4 water hole, a sign labeled "Caution Loch Ness" with a picture of "Nessie" was seen.

Upon reaching the tee box, "Nessie" was seen coming out of the water with a golf ball in her mouth. The "Scotty" dog theme was carried out in name tags and cart signs as designed by Dave Postier.

Liquid refreshments and shortbread was served at "Mulligan's Pub" located in the Ackerman's backyard just off the 9th fairway. The "Pub" sponsored by Roger Ackerman's, "Preferred Pools" was decorated with a red and black plaid blanket with a prominent black "Scotty" dog on top. Dakota, Mary and Dave Postier's dog, dressed in a plaid bandana and sitting on a pastel plaid blanket, played the role of Mulligan.

Following golf, the ladies entered the ballroom where a display table featuring photographs of Scotland as well as memorabilia such as antique shortbread press, Scottish family crests, and books on St. Andrews, was available for leisure looking. In addition, stunning centerpieces of golden mums in European style baskets with moss graced each table. Ivory "Bill of Fares" (menus) decorated with plaid ribbon were found at each place setting along with a favor consisting of a basket with a golf ball, pen marker, and tees wrapped in cellophane tied with various colored plaid ribbons symbolizing the different Scottish clans. A prayer by Scottish poet, Robert Burns, was beautifully read by Charlene Smuck. Celtic music was played throughout the luncheon.

After the awarding of prizes and drawing of door prizes, the event concluded with a skit centered around U-2's version of the song "The Scotsman". Highland dancers were choreographer, Terri Garret, Darlene Park, Claire Chauffe and Jerry Ingraham. The skit starred Shirley Shaffer, as the Scotsman and featured Jeanette Sullivan and Dianne Ackerman as the fair young maidens.

Sponsors for the event included Jackie O's, Favre's on the Bayou, Bacardi, Dominion E&P, Morgan Stanley, and Nevada Bob's. The grand prize sponsor was the Imperial Place Casino and a generous anonymous donor.

Members, Mary Dupont and Margaret Jolly sponsored the DWGA Nines notebooks given to attendees at registration.

Committee members for the event were Dianne Ackerman, (Chairperson), Mary Postier, (Asst. Chairperson), Marilyn Dehnobstel, (Prizes), Mimi Alef, (Breakfast & Luncheon), Darlene Park, (Financial records), Claire Chauffe, (Handicap Chairman) and Sally Lindsley (Photography).

Students win in Lions International Peace Poster Contest

Cynthia Prevou, Bay-Waveland Middle School, Kimberly Sawyer, Hancock Middle School, and Augustrine Tran, Pass Christian Middle School, have taken the first step to becoming internationally recognized artists by winning a local competition sponsored by the Diamondhead Lions Club.

Prevou, Sawyer, and Tran's posters were among more than 290 entries submitted locally and 325,000 entries submitted worldwide in the 16th annual Lions International Peace Poster Contest. Lions Club International is sponsoring the contest to emphasize the importance of world peace to young people everywhere.

The theme of this year's Peace Poster contest was, "Create A Brighter Tomorrow." Cynthia Prevou, age 11, from Bay St. Louis, described her poster with these words: "Walk away from a dark past and walk into a brighter future."

Kimberly Sawyer, age 12, from Diamondhead, says her poster means: "By bringing small, but important things together, we can create an even better thing, like peace. This will spread happiness to all who can help, create it."

Augustrine Tran, age

13, from Pass Christian, says: "What peace means to me is unity, a serene day, calmness, happiness, sociable and restful."

The winning posters were selected by a panel of judges for their originality, artistic merit, and portrayal of the contest theme, "Create a Brighter Tomorrow." The judging was held on Oct. 28 at the Diamondhead Community Center.

Diamondhead Lions Club president, Linda Mason, said she was impressed by the expression and creativity shown by the students of Bay-Waveland, Hancock, and Pass Christian Middle Schools.

"It is obvious that these young people have strong ideas about what peace means to them," she said. "I'm so proud that we were able to provide them with the opportunity to share their visions."

Prevou, Sawyer, and Tran's posters will now advance to the next level of judging, the district, in Carthage. Their entries will compete with entries from other local Peace Poster Contest winners.

"Prevou, Sawyer, and Tran will face stiff competition through the district round and three more rounds of competition if one of them is to be declared the International Grand Prize Winner," Mason said.

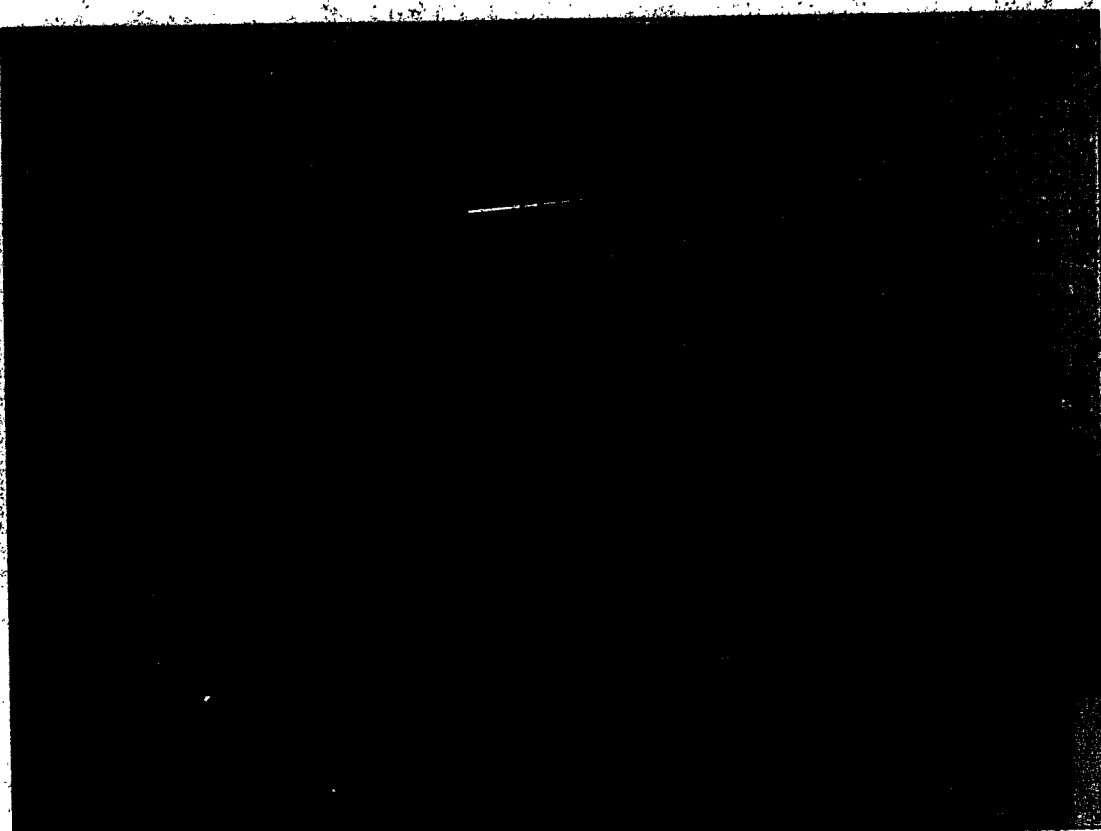

Ultimately, one grand prize winner will be selected from 24 international finalists.

The grand prize includes a cash award of $2,500 plus a trip for the winner and two family members to New York City, New York, for the awards ceremony at Lions Day at the United Nations. As Merit Award Winners, the remaining 23 finalists will each receive a certificate and a cash award of $500.

"Our club is cheering for Prevou, Sawyer and Tran as their poster advances in the competition, and we hope that their vision of peace will ultimately be shared with others around the world," Mason said.

Locally, Prevou and Tran have also won the Diamondhead Lions Club first and second prizes respectively.

They were honored at their schools on Nov. 12. The ceremony for Sawyer and Hank Breazeale, who won the Diamondhead Lions Club third prize, will be held at Hancock Middle School on Jan. 9, 2004.

Views From a Front Porch

by Paul Estronza La Violette
laviolette@mail.datasync.com

This morning when I returned from walking Jennie on the beach, I paused in front of the large oak in front of the house.

High up on the tree, nailed to the trunk, was the vestige of the large yellow bow Stella and I had put up (was it early this year?) at the start of the Iraq war. I say vestige, the weather, sun and time had dealt harshly with it. That the bow had once been yellow was only faintly noticeable. As to it having once been a bow, was not.

The yellow bow reminds me of those cars that still go by with flags fluttering from posts affixed by clips to their windows. The flags are worn and faded also and most should have been removed a long time ago. There is a difference though between the two symbols. The flags bespeak of glory and the backing of a cause. The ribbons say only that we are waiting for our people to come home.

On the news the other night as we sat eating supper, we listened to the report of six soldiers killed. A few nights before, there had been sixteen killed. I reached for the remote and turned the television off and Stella and I finished our supper in silence.

When the war started, we like many others had our individual hopes and fears, but like others had watched hypnotized by the television view of endless streams of US tanks and armored carriers moving out into the purplish dust and haze of the desert landscape. I thought then that I knew what we as a nation were trying to do. There were good reasons for our actions in going to war and before doing so we had argued those reasons in the highest assemblage of nations in the world.

Now, after our sweeping victory in the war's field campaigns, I'm not so sure.

If the war does not seem to have a definite purpose to me sitting down to a home

SURVIVAL OF THE Arts

The love of the theater that De LaMotte spoke of so long ago has endured in local communities all across the planet through the centuries, ensuring the survival of the art of performance.

But survival means community support, and today one of our local community theater groups, the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, needs that support more than ever. In fact, the life of the building that houses the theater depends on it.

Board members say that without major repairs, the building, which has housed the Little Theater since 1948, is nearing the end of its useful life. Though the building is not in danger of falling down just yet, the time to begin major renovations has arrived.

The building, which is actually two buildings joined (but more about that later), needs major structural repairs, replacement of the underboards on the roof, new interior wallboard, replacement of joist and support

The Bay St. Louis Little Theater today looks much as it did in 1948, but age and use have taken their toll. The building is in need of major repairs. Pictured are board member Claire Haun, board president Scott Darrah, board treasurer Sandy Reese and board secretary Elaine Harter.

Sweet alyssum, dusty miller partner well in cool season

BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU Horticulturist
Central Mississippi Research & Extension Center

Garden centers are loaded with the highest quality fall bedding plants, getting gardeners ready to pull up those marigolds and cut back lantanas, verbenas, salvias and mums if they haven't already.

The last few weeks I have been touting the traditional pansies, snapdragons, violas and cabbages, but there are other great plants that you might not have tried.

The first is sweet alyssum. This awesome bedding plant with its delightful fragrance usually relishes our winter months. In zone 8 we consider it a fall bedding plant; in zone 7 it is a late-winter or early-spring plant. I know several gardeners, however, who plant them in northern regions in the fall with no problems.

This small bedding plant is known as Lobularia maritima and is native to coastal southern Europe. It is ideal for the front of the border and comes in white, rose, lilac and purple. The sweet alyssum persists a lot longer into the warm season than many realize.

They may only reach 4 inches high, but their landscape impact and fragrance make them tops in my book. The pastel colors of the sweet alyssum look stunning when planted in combination with the silver dusty miller.

Dusty miller is known botanically as Senecio cineraria and is from Italy. Though usually considered an annual, many of us grow it as a short-lived perennial, cutting it back to rejuvenate growth.

The striking gray foliage of the dusty miller stands out in a world dominated by dark green foliage. The leaves are white to gray and appear coated with velvet. This Mediterranean plant is low-maintenance and can endure summer's heat and droughty conditions.

The soil must drain freely for both the sweet alyssum and the dusty miller to thrive. Plant them on raised beds or amend the planting area with 3 to 4 inches of organic matter to improve drainage. While tilling the soil, incorporate 2 pounds of a 5-10-5 fertilizer per 100 square feet of bed space. They can be grown from seeds, but nursery-grown transplants are easier. Space plants 6 to 8 inches apart. Apply only a thin layer of mulch after planting.

These are drought-tolerant plants. Water the transplants to get them established and then only sparingly or during prolonged dry periods. The dusty rafters under the stage, new plumbing in the back stage area, added heating and air conditioning capacity, extra added handicapped accessible areas and more.

Many different plant varieties share the name dusty miller. In addition to

Of course, the structural repairs are top on the list, says board president Scott Darrah. Expansion projects and aesthetics concerns would come later.

To help with the enormous expense of such a project, the board hopes to qualify for a grant from the building program fund sponsored by the Mississippi Arts Commission. The grant, though a great help, would still require a local match in funds. Board member Claire Haun, who is helping with the grant application, says the grant will likely supply 60 percent of the requested funding, with a required local match of 40 percent of the funding.

Right now, the theater is not partnered with any local businesses or industry and depends almost exclusively on ticket sales or private donations to finance productions and the maintenance and operation needs. And even selling tickets to productions can be tricky with no box office facilities. In the past, those wishing to purchase a ticket for a performance had to leave a message requesting one.

At least for now, the board hopes a partnership with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will help make the process easier. Board secretary Elaine Harter says the chamber has agreed to allow the Little Theater to make tickets available for sale at the chamber office the week before performances.

Already on the menu is a project to replace the first seven or eight rows of seating with seats donated by a New Orleans group. Right now, about two dozen of the 145 seats in the theater are unusable, said Darrah. Just like with all the projects and all the productions at the theater, volunteers will be needed to help install the seats. Jan. 10 and 17 are slated work days for the project.

To raise help raise funds to contribute to the grant's matching requirements the board members say they would like to partner more with local business and industry. One idea would be to sell blocks of tickets to be used as incentives for employees for example, or recognition of local groups for donations through ticket discounts. The board is also offering "seats for sale." For a $150 donation a name plaque would be affixed to the back of a theater seat recognizing that person as a supporter of the Little Theater, a great Christmas gift idea for theater lovers, Darrah said.

The Bay St. Louis Little Theater is a community institution, say the board members, and to lose it would be a great tragedy. The Little Theater has been in Bay St. Louis since just after the ending of World War II, when a group of locals decided in 1946 that the boost of a local theater group was just the positive influence that the town needed after the lean war years. Television was not widespread and the theater was an important source of the community's entertainment. That year the Little Theater held its first performance of "The Twelve Pound Look" at the Bay High School auditorium. After the second performance the group secured a one room wooden structure at the edge of the Bay High athletic field on Carroll Avenue.

That first year the Little Theater produced 12 plays and membership grew from the original 28 to hundreds.

In 1948 the property on Boardman Avenue, where the theater currently resides, was purchased. Two war surplus barracks from the Seabee base in Gulfport were purchased, disassembled, and moved to Bay St. Louis by barge.

The buildings were reassembled one vertically and one horizontally on the lot forming the building that the Little Theater still calls home.

One of the original founders, Emily de Montluzin, well remembers the early days of the group, especially the elaborate sets that were a part of each stellar production. And perhaps most of all, she remembers the camaraderie.

"We only performed plays that had been successful Broadway plays," said de Montluzin. "Sets were absolutely perfect and drew their own admiration."

She remembers the first wooden building and its tin roof, turning performances during a rain storm into almost a shouting match to be heard above the pounding raindrops. Most of all though, the theater provided a wonderful emotional relief after the starkness of the war years. There were wonderful parties after each performance and a sense of camaraderie, a sense of closeness, like a family of sorts with fellow performers and others involved in a production.

"You had spent months with these people and they were 'blood brothers,'" she said.

Posters in the early days were designed by architect Frank Clark, de Montluzin said, and were made in the style of blueprints, very recognizable. Even if people didn't always read the particulars as they passed by they recognized the posters as an announcement that a production was coming up. The walls of the theater were covered in the posters and during Hurricane Camille the front and back doors of the theater blew open, scattering the historic posters to the wind, most of them lost forever.

Today some historic posters and those of more current productions still cover the walls of the auditorium. The look of the original theater is something that current members say they plan to preserve, even after renovations.

Current traditions such as the children's theater production each summer will also continue with community support. All theater productions and activities are open to all members of the community and participation is encouraged, said Darrah. Even if someone is not interested in acting in a production, chances are that if they are interested in being a part of the group, there are plenty of other ways to share in a production.

If you would like to be a part of the Little Theater tradition this may be the time to give it a try.

To become a part of the Little Theater, through donations or through volunteering, call 228-467-2587 or check the website at www.bsllt.net or www.bsllt.org.

Senecio, consider that Centaurea, Artemisia and even the Tanacetum species are also commonly called dusty miller.

Cirrus, Silverdust, Silver Feather and Silver Queen are popular selections of dusty miller under the genus Senecio.

My favorite variety of sweet alyssum is Easter Bonnet, which was a Fleuroselect Quality award winner.

Dusty miller and sweet alyssum are at garden centers along with a huge selection of other cool-season bedding plants. Get to work and make your landscape the envy of the neighborhood.

cooked meal in Waveland Mississippi, what about the men and women that are still there doing their duty, walking the line? What about them? My son's unit is going back and it's probable that he will be going with them. He has already been there earlier this year and was sent over during the Afghanistan War as well. I'm not happy.

I don't know if I have a right to second guess men who have heard shots fired in anger. I'm supposedly a veteran of the Korean War, but I saw no action. I was transferred off my ship just as it was leaving for Korea and spent the next two years in a backwater naval base in Cuba. Later, the ship hit a mine off the Korean coast, blowing up my former GQ station and leaving the man who replaced me permanently injured.

I have a medal for the occupation of Europe. But it means nothing to me. I was only eighteen and to me at first it was all a grand adventure. I really didn't know what I was seeing when I saw cities that had been reduced to rubble and peopled with homeless refugees. It was always the same as my ship moved from place to place in northern Europe and then the Mediterranean, rubble, people living on the streets. At night, I slept in a clean bunk and had all I wanted to eat.

Then in Trieste, a young girl of maybe 13 and her younger brother of perhaps six took to hanging out at my guard post by the Trust Building when I had the duty.

They were orphans and came both for the food I brought them when I came on watch and the apparent safety of my post. I gave the boy the first banana he had ever seen and I had to show him how to peel it. The girl said they were from communist-occupied Austria, but occasionally, I heard the boy say something in Slavic.

Late one night, a jeep with two American MPs and an Italian Occupation Policeman, pulled up and grabbed the girl and the boy. The girl protested, but they slapped her and threw her in the back of the jeep. When I tried to interfere, one MP pushed me back and ordered me to stay out of it. He was a sergeant, I think. Then they drove off.

The officer of the watch and a petty officer came running up yelling as the jeep left. The officer started screaming at me wanting to know what had happened. It turns out that the watch had all knew about the two children keeping me company at my post, but no one had said anything. But when they saw the scuffle, they had come running.

I was relieved immediately and put on report. Not for letting the two children sit with me, a serious offense, but for letting the two MPs assume control of my post, a far more serious offense.

The charge was later dropped and I was never punished, but I never forgot the screams of the little boy and the look of fear in the young girls eyes. From then on, the rubble in the streets and the people sleeping in doorways seemed no longer a part of my personal adventure.

That was so very long ago. I went back to the same guard post three years ago and tried to tell Stella who was with me what the city had been like so many years ago. Looking around, it was hard for her to see it what with the changes that have since taken place.

But I remember.

Now, it is all with us again, eighteen year olds and older moving in a landscape that is not theirs, in a conflict with no end in sight and an unclear reason for why it is so.

Each day, they are finding themselves in a strange land being introduced at the very least to minor incidents such as mine to become memories that will last them for times long past the growing of their children and their children's children.

I will leave the yellow ribbon in the tree in the front of our house.

The holidays strike again!

"Well, it's just about that time again. I don't feel good at all, what with the holidays fast coming upon us. My knees hurt, my eyes are bothering me, and I'm just depressed about being alone and about a lot of other things."

Each year, I listen intently for the first sign of the holiday blues, the anniversary syndrome, seasonal affective disorder (SAD), or whatever you choose to call the phenomenon which strikes like clockwork every year.

That just-quoted volley was spoken to me on November 17, which is just about the average time before Thanksgiving that the holiday blues surface. On the very next day, a second dumping was put upon me by another friend.

Aggravating that festering atmosphere on, once more, the very next day was the obnoxious playing of Christmas carols in some of the retail stores. It was nothing short of jarring and annoying with Thanksgiving still a week off. If there ever was a complete turnoff, that was it.

As Turkey Day bears down upon us, it is abundantly clear that, for all the merchants, and, it would seem, most of the citizenry, Thanksgiving Day, even Christmas itself is scarcely more than a secular occasion for partying.

Their main focus is on turkey, or maybe turducken: that exotic composite of a chicken within a duck within a turkey. Further, their focus lands on all the mouth-watering dishes and trimmings of the holidays; that, despite the numerous health issues dripping from rich foods, especially as we age.

The most distressing and puzzling sight of the holidays by far is the vast majority of people nursing some lesser or greater affliction such as weight, diabetes or hypertension, still struggling to eat and party with abandon.

Concurrent with huge appetite, anticipation and excitement, guilt is in each pair of eyes of the middle-aged and older as folks tie into the seductive foods, drinks and what-abouts of the holiday season.

Utterly amazing is the hold sugar products have on many aging people with extreme health issues.

A somewhat sad segue for just as many folks is the realization that the wide-open family celebration and camaraderie have been dampened over the years by a sharp rise of those health issues and a decline in food tolerance.

The good times of yesteryear are gradually petering down to almost nothing.

Feeling sorry for ourselves, remembering with melancholy the good times and family fetes of old, and wishing upon a star that the past could be neatly revived into the present and future, comprises the makings of holiday blues.

We simply feel cheated that the wonderful aromas, appearances and flavors of so many fabulous dishes have become more and more of a poison to our system. It seems grossly unfair that fabulous foods and drinks, the time-honored cultural backdrop of reunions, are less and less an option.

Add terminal illness and deaths, the most poignant ingredients of all, and we have a bad recipe for seasonal affective disorder (SAD) which sours each sweet item on our menu and agenda, and saddens every smile and thought.

We are hit with a double whammy here: the in-your-face atmosphere itself of the supposedly joyous holidays, and the gnawing memories of loved ones now dead or savaged by the inroads of debilitating, terminal illnesses.

In short, it is far more than merely being alone, abandoned or neglected.

It is the phenomenon of the dreaded anniversary syndrome which goes round and round, reminding us relentlessly of the annual passing of our loved ones.

Over the years, a disturbing number of people build up a visceral animosity toward the holidays, an "I hate the holidays" attitude. "I can't wait until the holidays are done and long past," one hears all too often.

If you think the holidays are all about you, you are destined to become one of those holiday haters, if you are not one already.

The bald truth is, the holidays involve you, naturally, but they are not about your pity party.

No, the holidays are about a greater concentration on thanksgiving to our Creator that should eventually develop into everyday thanksgiving. Our big shame is that we have to designate one day of the year as Thanksgiving Day.

Further, the holidays are also not about you and your lonely, painful bouts with personal family problems: your isolation, sicknesses and heartbreaking losses of dear ones in recent times or down through the years.

Rather, the holidays are all about the Man himself, how he came into this world to serve and to die for us, how he came here as the Divine Dumpster, poised to receive our most putrid, foul, poisonous and painful dumpings.

Again, we are seriously mistaken if we think we can manage this problem of the holiday blues by ourselves, even though we seem to be scratching a responsive chord when we apply the human wisdom of psychotherapy. Add society anxiety disorder (another meaning of SAD?) to the equation.

Just make sure that you underpin all human efforts with the saving healing of Jesus: "He was pierced for our offenses, crushed for our sins - by his stripes we were healed." (Isaiah 53:5.)

The "Word" for the Week
Between you and God

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

You don't like your dirty linen hung out for everyone to see, do you? I don't either. To put it another way, we all have skeletons in our closets we'd prefer others knew nothing about.

Interestingly enough, God looks at our sin in a similar fashion. He is not interested in humiliating us before our contemporaries.

For example, when Judas Iscariot was plotting to betray Jesus, he sat at the table with Jesus. The other disciples were astonished when Jesus exclaimed, "The hand of the one betraying Me is with Me on the table" (Luke 22:21).

"They began to discuss among themselves which one of them it might be who was going to do this thing" (Luke 22:23).

Jesus did not expose Judas before his contemporaries. The sin of Judas in seeking the murder of Jesus was a sin kept between Judas and Jesus.

Jesus, it seems, wanted that sin dealt with on this intimate level. This is an important lesson for you and me! You see, your rebellion against God is first of all sin against God.

When David had committed adultery, that adultery was not so much a sin against Bathsheba's husband as it was hostility toward God.

David told God, "Against Thee, Thine only have I sinned" (Psalm 51:4).

Now can you say that you have never had feelings of guilt? Dirty linen, old skeletons and feelings of guilt indicate sin against God. Your sin is a matter between you and God. Like David, you need to go to God and seek His forgiveness.

The Bible says, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). Let me tell you, forgiveness for sin, cleansing from guilt, is simply wonderful!

Our Lady Academy Pepsi Students of the Month for September

Our Lady Academy has selected the Pepsi Students of the Month for September. In placing nominations, faculty recommended students who have been outstanding in academics, respect, citizenship, service, spirit, and/or school involvement. The students chosen for September are: (left to right) Kristin Kergosien, 8th grade; Sydney Chevis, 9th grade; Laurie Benvenutti, Junior; Rachel Cuevas, sophomore; Kathleen McKissack, 7th grade; and Sarah Crowe, senior.

Hancock Vo-Tech DECA attends fall leadership

On October 2-4, the Hancock Vo-Tech Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) Chapter and advisor, Lady Anne Bruce, attended the 2003 Fall Leadership Conference in Tupelo. The focus of the conference was to provide DECA members with information about opportunities the organization has to offer students. This year's keynote speaker was Cory Cox, DECA's Southern Region Vice President. Cox spoke to the delegates about enthusiasm, self-confidence, and learning how to cheer for yourself. His message communicated that leadership is an action, not a position.

During the conference, students attended workshops geared toward team building, chapter growth, focusing on professional dress, and preparing for competition. Once of the most important sessions, "Competition-Role Playing," gave each student an opportunity to review a case study, develop a strategy to handle a business problem, and present that strategy to an individual judge. Each student was evaluated based upon problem solving, human relations, and communications skills. As an added bonus, students were able to visit a significant landmark of Tupelo's modern history - the birthplace of Elvis Presley.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR COASTAL WETLANDS PERMIT AND WATER QUALITY CERTIFICATION
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has filed an application with the Department of Marine Resources requesting permission to conduct regulated activities under the provision of the Coastal Wetlands Protection Law Act, Title 49, Chapter 27, Mississippi Code of 1972, adjacent to the south side of the entrance channel to Bayou Caddy, Bay St. Louis, Hancock County, Mississippi. This is a revised public notice for modifying an existing, valid permit issued by the DMR in December, 2001. The applicant wishes to extend 2 previously permitted riprap jetties up to 100 linear feet bringing their total lengths to no more than 350 linear feet seaward into the MS Sound. The jetties will function to contain and protect the previously permitted beach reconstruction. The beach reconstruction dimensions will not change. One jetty is located south of Sand Bayou and will reduce migration of sand material in a northerly direction towards the bayou. The other jetty, located north of the Bayou Caddy navigation channel, will help limit sand migration to the south and prevent sand and sediment buildup in the channel. The jetties will have a base width of 10 feet and impact approximately 0.28 acre of waterbottoms each. The project is located near the Lakeshore community in Hancock County, MS.
In compliance with Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1251, 1341), as amended by PL 95-217, the applicant will request certification from the Office of Pollution Control that the above mentioned activity will be in compliance with applicable provisions of Section 301 (33 U.S.C. 1311), Section 302 (33 U.S.C. 1312), Section 303 (U.S.C. 1313), Section 306 (U.S.C. 1316), and Section 307 (U.S.C. 1317) of the Act and appropriate requirements of the State Law.
Any person wishing to make comments or objections to the proposed regulated activity must submit those comments in writing to the Department of Marine Resources at 1141 Bayview Avenue, Biloxi, Mississippi 39530 and the Office of Pollution Control, Post Office Box 10385, Jackson, Mississippi 39205 before 5:00 p.m. on the day December 12, 2003.

Marsha Thomason

Checking in With Marsha Thomason

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Marsha Thomason is no stranger to television.

She has appeared in half a dozen TV series in her native England, including "Playing the Field," which also aired in the United States on BBC America. But, she admits her experience on NBC's Monday-night "Las Vegas" has been pretty stressful.

"It's just so much bigger and there's so much pressure," Thomason says. "For example, in England, with 'Playing the Field,' we shot six one-hour episodes, and they aired and did well, so we did some more."

"In America, you do the pilot, then you have to wait and see whether that will be picked up. Then, you have to see whether the first episodes do well enough for them to pick up 'the back nine' (for a full season). It just seems that as soon as you get over one hurdle, there's another one waiting for you. So I just can't get involved in that part of it."

After a shaky start, "Las Vegas" has been given a full season's order by NBC, partly on the strength of Thomason's buzzed-about character of pit boss Nessa Holt, nicknamed "The Ice Queen."

"That's because when she is working, she is very serious and focused. As a pit boss, you have to be on top of your game, no pun intended," the actress says.

"You get to see another side of Nessa when she isn't working, and it's fun for me to play those two very different sides of her."

Thomason opened this Thanksgiving weekend in her other big project, starring as the matriarch in Disney's movie "The Haunted Mansion."

"I took the project because the script is absolutely wonderful," she says. "I didn't even know about the theme-park ride until later. The main theme is that love conquers all, and it's just a wonderful family movie."

Born: Jan. 19, 1976, in Manchester, England.

Childhood inspiration: Seeing the movie musical "Bugsy Malone" at age 12.

Turning point: Being cast at age 17 in Antonia Bird's drama "Safe." "Working with actors like Aidan Gillen and Bobby Carlyle, I knew this was what I wanted to do as an adult," Thomason says.

U.K. film credits: "Safe"; "Priest"; "Long Time Dead"; "Pure"; "Tug of War."

U.K. TV credits: "Prime Suspect 5: Errors of Judgment"; "Brazen Hussies"; "Pie in the Sky"; "Playing the Field"; "Where the Heart Is"; "Love in the 21st Century"; "Table 12"; "Burn It."

U.S. film credits: "Black Knight"; "The Haunted Mansion."

Featured Bertinelli looks for 'Christmas' in CBS movie

By Jay Bobbin

Valerie Bertinelli was "Touched by an Angel" for two seasons, and in her new TV movie she encounters another kind of angel.

The long-popular television star returns to the home screen in "Finding John Christmas," a new CBS drama movie airing Sunday, Nov. 30. Bertinelli plays an emergency-room nurse searching for an anonymous man (William Russ, "Boy Meets World") whose holiday-season compassion for a desperate dog is captured in a newspaper photo.

The offer of a reward prompts many others to look for him - but the nurse has a personal reason, since she thinks the man is her missing brother, an ex-fireman.

Her efforts are guided by an angel, played by veteran actor Peter Falk (who had the same role in the 2001 CBS movie "A Town Without Christmas"). A photographer (David Cubitt, "Turks") also seeks the mystery man known only as "John Christmas."

During her years on the sitcom "One Day at a Time" and beyond, Bertinelli had offers to act in Christmas stories, but she says "the timing was always off. I'm so happy I did this one. It's so heartfelt and sweet, it's just one of those great feel-good movies. I also had a ball filming it in Halifax, Nova Scotia. It's so beautiful there."

Another bonus for Bertinelli was her first chance to work with Falk, "a delightful man" in her view. "I had a front-row seat to watch him do what he does, and it was fabulous. I took a picture of him with my camera phone to show my dad."

New holiday TV movies often are filmed the previous summer. Bertinelli confirms that she worked on "Finding John Christmas" last June and July, but she maintains, "It's always easy to get into the Christmas mindset. The holidays are always my favorite time of year."

Paris Hilton tries to lead 'The Simple Life'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

How simple can life be for trendy young socialites suddenly faced with milking cows and cleaning chicken coops?

Model, hotel heiress and gossip-column staple Paris Hilton and one of her best friends, Nicole Richie - daughter of veteran singer Lionel Richie - have an answer that will become evident when the unscripted series "The Simple Life" premieres Tuesday, Dec. 2, on Fox (after being delayed from last summer).

Produced by the makers of MTV's "The Real World," the show takes the early-twentysomethings from the glitz of the Los Angeles club scene to the down-home atmosphere of an Arkansas farm, where they spend just over a month with a family of seven in a one-bathroom house. The adjustment hardly is easy, but Hilton and Richie are determined to stick it out, no matter how much dirt they accumulate under their well-manicured nails.

"Maybe 50 different reality shows approached Nicky, my younger sister, and me," Hilton says in explaining her "Simple Life" involvement. "I turned all of them down because I wasn't really interested. I just thought doing another one in L.A. would be like a copy of all the others. Then, Bunim-Murray (the production company behind "The Simple Life") came to me with this idea. At first, I was scared, then I started to like it. I thought it would be fun to show another side of myself."

Initially, Hilton was slated to lead "The Simple Life" with Nicky, another paparazzi favorite - especially when she's out on the town with her sibling. What might have sounded like a good idea to Nicky became something else as production on the series neared, according to Paris: "She didn't want to live on a farm, and I couldn't think of anyone else I'd rather do this with than Nicole. She's really funny and fun to be around." Hilton entered "The Simple Life" without having reality-show burnout, since she claims, "I never watch TV, so I've never seen any of those series. Nicole likes them, though."

Arriving in Altus, Ark. - population: 817 - was every bit the culture shock Hilton anticipated. "It was really hard at first, just because it was so different from my day-to-day life. After a couple of weeks, though, I adapted. I was like, 'OK, I could live here.' Everyone knew who we were and that we were coming; they'd been talking about it for months. So even though they knew we would be there, we had no idea where we were going."

The locale, in Hilton's view, was a place with "like, nothing. There was one market and one store. It was a really small town, but a cute one. It was like something out of a movie set. I couldn't think of it as being real, but I don't think anybody was making fun of anybody. People in the town may have worried about that, but they didn't say anything to us about it. Everybody was just so nice to us."

Nevertheless, the producers had given Hilton and Richie an "out" clause. "We could have left if we'd wanted to," Hilton says, "but I had said I would do this, plus I wanted to prove everyone wrong. No one thought I would last more than a day. We'd get up at 4:30 in the morning and have a different job every day. The hardest was dairy farming, because you have to milk hundreds of cows twice a day. They're kicking you, and it smells, and it's just the hardest job ever."

Hilton could take temporary consolation in her calls home. "We had rules that included being allowed to talk on the phone twice a week for half an hour," she reports. "I didn't really call anyone except my parents and sister, and they'd ask lots of questions. No matter how I answered, they wouldn't believe me: We lived on a porch, and when I'd tell them that, they'd go, 'Yeah. Right.' Nobody who knows me will believe this until they see it."

Particularly helpful to Hilton during her Altus stay were the spirited reactions of her companions. She maintains that Richie "did good" with the chores and everything else. "We had so much fun. We just laughed the entire time." (Richie didn't fare so well afterward: She is scheduled to be back in court Friday, Dec. 5, after pleading guilty to a felony heroin-possession charge last August, then being ordered into a drug-treatment program.)

Tinkerbelle, Hilton's pet Chihuahua, also responded well to "The Simple Life." Hilton says the dog "played a lot with the other animals. She had a great time."

Now that her "Simple Life" stint is over and she's back in the world where tabloids monitor her every move, Hilton reflects, "It was good to get away from it all for a while. I just wanted to do something different. I wanted to see what else goes on in life, and I learned so much, including how hard people have to work for their money. If we wanted food, we'd have to go to work, and we only made $42 in eight hours. This really taught me the value of money."

The experience also showed Hilton that friendships can be forged in unlikely situations, then kept up. She says that since taping of "The Simple Life" ended last May, "I've talked to a couple of the friends I made there, and also to the mom and the dad we stayed with, and to one of the little brothers."

'O.C.' actress vamped Grissom on 'CSI'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q We enjoy "The O.C.," but I can't recall where I have seen the actress playing Julie Cooper before. What other shows has she been in? -Karen Bergren, Harlingen, Texas.

A Melinda Clarke, 31, tends to make a striking impression in any role, but she may be best known (to male viewers at least) for her sensual guest appearances on "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," where she played insightful dominatrix Lady Heather, one of the few women who has managed to crack Gil Grissom's (William L. Petersen) Zen exterior.

The California native - who occasionally has acted under the name Mindy Clarke - made her TV series debut in 1989 as Faith Taylor on "Days of Our Lives," the same daytime drama on which her father, John Clarke, has become well known to fans as Mickey Horton. She subsequently co-starred with John Schneider in the short-lived syndicated fantasy "Heaven Help Us" and with Brad Johnson in the syndicated action series "Soldier of Fortune, Inc."

Melinda Clarke

Q In watching "Murder, She Wrote" on A&E Network, I noticed that one of the show's producers is named Bruce Lansbury. Is he related to Angela Lansbury? -Liz Nagy, Tampa, Fla.

A Bruce is Angela's brother. Another brother, Edgar Lansbury, is also a respected producer, as is Angela's stepson, David Shaw. Her son, Anthony Pullen Shaw, is an actor turned director who helmed some "Murder, She Wrote" episodes and TV movies. (Lansbury's husband, producer Peter Shaw, died in January).

Q How long did the late Johnny Olsen and Rod Roddy serve as announcers on "The Price Is Right"? -K. Nelson via e-mail.

A Olsen began his "Price" gig in 1972 and continued until shortly before his death from a cerebral hemorrhage in 1985 at age 75. Roddy took over the job in 1986 and held it until shortly before his own recent death from cancer.

ABC puts December into the 'Line of Fire'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

For writer-director Rod Lurie, the TV cop-drama gold standard is ABC's "NYPD Blue." That gives him a lot to live up to when his new series, the crime drama "Line of Fire," takes over the "Blue" Tuesday-night slot, starting Dec. 2.

It's not the first time that the "Blue" time slot has been used to launch new shows (it worked well with "The Practice," not so much with "Strange World" or "The Family"), but this is the first time it's been tried with a show so close in spirit to "Blue," which returns with original episodes in February.

"I come from films," Lurie says, "and I'm still doing films, and if I'm going to create a television series, I want it to be worthwhile. I wanted to create something new, do something as revolutionary as I could with my limited brains."

"When ABC and Touchstone talked to me about it, the only thing I said was, 'I want to go to the edge and over the edge.' The edge is the 'NYPD Blue' standards, in terms of language, intensity and nudity."

"I said, 'I really need to go over that, as much as I can.' They didn't promise me that, but they said, 'We'll see.' So I decided to create a show that was really two shows in one, one about organized crime and one about the FBI."

"Line of Fire" is set in Richmond, Va. - a location Lurie previously used for his movie "The Contender," and for an ABC pilot called "Capital City" - and filmed both there and in the same Hollywood studios that house

ABC's "General Hospital" and FX's "The Shield."

Lurie has also brought over "Capital City" cast members David Paymer ("Quiz Show"), Brian Goodman ("The Last Castle"), Leslie Bibb ("Popular") and Jeffrey D. Sams ("Soul Food").

Paymer plays Jonah Malloy, an Irish-Jewish mob boss whose bespectacled, bookish exterior belies an inner ferocity and an absolute willingness to get his hands dirty.

"I've played my share of villains," Paymer says, "but there's something viscerally, violently different about Malloy in that he actually does kill people. Today, we're shooting a scene where I'm rigging a poker game. In other episodes, I've kidnapped a kid, solicited a prostitute - it's all in a day's work."

Goodman plays Malloy's lieutenant, Donovan "Stubbs" Stubbin. A South Boston native, Goodman had his share of troubles on the streets - including a stretch in prison - before turning to acting.

"I wanted to come out to L.A.," he says, "and hear 'Cut' instead of 'You're under arrest,' while doing the same things I used to do."

Bibb plays Paige Van Doren, an eager new FBI agent propelled by a burning desire to avenge her husband's death in the Pentagon on Sept. 11, 2001 - and plagued by the unwelcome attentions of her smooth-talking FBI Academy classmate, Todd Stevens (Sams).

Van Doren and Stevens, along with Special Agents Jennifer Sampson (Julie Ann Emery), a mother of two, and Amiel MacArthur (Michael Irby) are under the command of Special Agent in Charge Lisa Cohen (Leslie Hope, "24"). She drinks, smokes, and exudes tough-as-nails attitude on the job that belies a private life in shambles.

"She no longer has custody of her child," Hope says. "She's divorced. She's in love, or feels she's in love, with a married man. She's a woman in a traditionally male world in a position of power."

"She's one of those people who many of us know who is a highly functioning alcoholic, which is to say she goes out and trashes her personal life, but comes in the next day fully prepared and ready to go."

A shootout in the pilot that results in two deaths makes blood enemies of the Malloy mob and the local FBI, but not every story line is cops vs. mobsters.

"These are not necessarily inter-connecting stories at all," Lurie says.

The success of "The Sopranos" - with its good-bad guy mobster hero - and "The Shield" - with its good-bad guy cop hero - has widened the perception of what a dramatic protagonist can be on television, and "Line of Fire" plans to exploit that.

In the set for Malloy's study hangs a vintage American flag, preserved under glass.

"He considers himself very patriotic," Paymer says, "and considers himself a good American. He has his own twisted sense of justice. In the pilot, in the scene on the dock where I whack the guy, the guy sold crack to my nephew, so he had it coming."

"What we're learning is all these characters have quirks, and some of the FBI people are doing things that are a little questionable."

In the ABC crime drama "Line of Fire," premiering Tuesday, Leslie Hope ("24") stars as FBI Special Agent in Charge Lisa Cohen, who battles a local crime syndicate in Richmond, Va.

For example, in a future episode, Cohen is not above asking undercover agent Roy Ravelle (Anson Mount), who has infiltrated Malloy's organization, to risk his life by stealing back cash when a sting goes bad.

This idea of people not being what you assume them to be even extends to the cast. The Canadian-born Hope had all sorts of notions of what the FBI was before she signed on.

"I went into this with this typical lefty-liberal idea of the FBI," she says, "that they're all keeping files, they're all up to no good. They are simply the most heroic and generous men and women that I've ever encountered. They completely changed my mind about what that organization was."

"My only regret is that I'm a year too old to join the FBI."

As Paymer gets used to beating in the odd head, Hope gets used to totting her Glock.

"I love my gun!" she says. "I came in thinking, 'I don't know, I'm just a girl. I don't know about handling a gun.' Cut to, 'George, George, let me fire it one more time!'"

Inside the re-created "American Bandstand" sets of NBC's 1960s Sunday-night drama, "American Dreams," the atmosphere is rockin'.

With shaggy hair, a Nehru jacket, pegged pants and Beatle boots, Richie Sambora - a 44-year-old New Jersey native and founding member of the rock band Bon Jovi - is standing in for 19-year-old Eric Clapton to perform "For Your Love," recorded during Clapton's year-and-a-half stint with the Yardbirds. The segment appears in the Sunday, Nov. 30, episode, called "The Long Goodbye."

Despite the age gap, executive producer Jonathan Prince doesn't see a problem. He says, "The leap you take, is that Richie is somebody of the era in the way he looks, and of the era in the way he plays the guitar."

Currently in its second season, "American Dreams" focuses on Meg (Brittany Snow), a Philadelphia teen who, along with best pal Roxanne (Vanessa Lengies), dances on Dick Clark's "American Bandstand." The show combines black-and-white footage of Clark's original introductions with performances by contemporary artists posing as '60s musicians.

"The great thing about walking onto the 'Bandstand' set, is you look at the audience, and it's like you're in a time warp," Sambora says. "It's like you just woke up in 1965."

Looking at ease behind a vintage guitar, Sambora sings to a playback of his new version of the tune. "It's interesting, because when I recorded the track on Tuesday, we wanted to get as close to the original as we possibly could," he says. "Today, when I came in, I hadn't really listened to it. When I had to actually perform it, I didn't know if it was the original or if it was mine. That's how cool it was."

Sambora says he taught himself to play guitar by listening to records by the Beatles, the Allman Brothers, Cream and others, imagining what he would do if he were a guitar player in the studio.

Little did he know that, a couple of decades later, he would stand on stage with his teachers. "I was asked to give Eric this prestigious award, like the guitar god of all time, on 'The American Music Awards' or something like that," he recalls. "I got a chance to actually play with him."

"It was me and him, Lou Reed, Joe Perry, and one other guy, I forget. Because of the genre of music that I was playing, they had no idea that I could actually play the blues."

"We all stood in a circle. We were only supposed to rehearse for 15 minutes. We ended up playing together for 40. There were five lead-guitar players, with no one stepping on each other. It was a real beautiful moment. We all laughed our asses off, because lead-guitar players are egotistical sometimes, but there wasn't any of that."

"Eric and I sat down, I just had to tell him, 'Look, man, you're one of my idols. I just wanted you to know - thank you. I'm a kid from a dead-end street in New Jersey, and I grew up listening to you, and now I just sold 16 million records.'"

At Sambora's request, for his first solo album, Clapton played on "Mr. Bluesman," and the guitarists became friends.

Despite this, Sambora didn't immediately tell his pal about his "American Dreams" impersonation. "I haven't had a chance to call," Sambora says. "I'm going to just send him the tape, see what he says. He'll probably laugh like crazy, go, 'What're you doing? You're 44!'"

Fortysomething Bon Jovi lead guitarist Richie Sambora (pictured) guest stars as 19-year-old upstart Eric Clapton singing with the Yardbirds on "American Bandstand," in the hit 1960s musical drama series "American Dreams," airing Sunday on NBC.

Army-Navy game about people, rivalry

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

When Ian Eagle was preparing to cover his first Army-Navy game last year, his initial thought was to treat it as just another football game.

The week before the game, he realized that was the wrong approach. "I recognized after our first set of meetings - we met with Navy first, then we drove to West Point the next day - after the first two players came into the meetings, I realized my approach had to change completely.

"The reality hits you when you're sitting down with these players that a number of them are preparing to defend our country," says Eagle, who will be at Lincoln Financial Field in Philadelphia to do play-by-play alongside analyst Boomer Esiason, and sideline reporters Tracy Wolfson and Dwayne Ballen for CBS' coverage of the 104th Army-Navy game on Saturday, Dec. 6. "Yeah, it might be the last football game they ever play in. ... It's going to be a hard-hitting reality that the players that I'm not talking to, there's a pretty good chance that they might be overseas."

Not surprisingly, CBS will spend a good part of the telecast getting the audience acquainted with the players on the field. Eagle says, "To me, it's almost like a blank canvas, from a play-by-play man's standpoint, because they're not household names and their stories deserve to be told. That's the irony of it, that oftentimes you're dealing with superstars in the NFL, where maybe they don't deserve as much attention as they get on a week-to-week basis. Well, these individuals, from the star player on the team to the last guy on the roster, they all have an intriguing story of how they got there."

But while the human-interest stories may help draw in the casual or even non-fan, the quality of play usually has been more than enough to interest the football fanatic. This is a heated rivalry that dates back to 1890, one that regularly manifests itself in passionate football, even though one or both teams may be in the midst of a dreadful season.

"There's so much pride on the line," Eagle says. "To see the level of passion for them, and more often than not, it doesn't necessarily lead to a bigger game. It's not like the winner moves on to a bowl game. But the level of emotion is so high for those players, and they know when they go back to their respective campuses that that's all anybody wants to talk about. No matter how poor a season or how great a season it's been, if you don't win that game, you're going to remember it - forever."

Last year's game, a 58-12 Navy rout, likely won't go down in the annals of great Army-Navy battles, but it was still a satisfying experience for Eagle. "By most standards," he says, "when you have the game that we had last year ... from a broadcaster's standpoint, you can't help but be disappointed, because you do all this work, you do all this preparation.

"(But) even though it was so lopsided, I didn't feel badly about it after the game. I still felt like we got out a lot of good stories, and were able to give the background to the matchup. And if somebody tuned in, there was something of value at the end of 3 1/2 hours. My point being, for an NFL game or maybe a regular college football game, if you get a one-sided affair, you feel upset and disappointed after the game. That wasn't the case for me last year after this game."

A victory for Army this year, Eagle says, might help ease the pain of a dismal season. "For a team that has yet to win a game (at press time), that fired its coach midway through the year, a program that right now is looking for a fresh start, that would be a perfect starting point, a perfect springboard to maybe changing their fate."

It would also be yet another chapter in what is arguably the most storied rivalry in college sports. "We have great rivalries in this country in college sports," Eagle says. "There are some tremendous ones. But I think because of the way big-time college football has developed over the last 5-10 years, those rivalries have taken a back seat to some degree. This one hasn't. This one is still the purest college football rivalry that you'll find, and it has everything to do with ... from the day they walk on that campus, (the Army-Navy rivalry) is drilled into their heads."

"Tennessee Titans at New York Jets" Monday, Dec. 1 (ABC, 9 p.m. ET): Tonight against the Jets, NFL fans countrywide get to see for themselves what rooters in Tennessee have known all season: The Titans are legitimate Super Bowl contenders. And the reason, most observers agree, is quarterback Steve McNair. Without a top-flight running back or Pro Bowl receivers, McNair almost singlehandedly controls his team's offense, doing so with an equal combination of skill and toughness.

"Detroit Red Wings at St. Louis Blues" Thursday, Dec. 4 (ESPN, 7:30 p.m. ET): Older hasn't been better for the Detroit Red Wings this season. The team's sluggish start could be traced to the fact that five of its top players, including leader Steve Yzerman and goalie Dominik Hasek, are over age 38. The opposite is true for the St. Louis Blues, whose prime-time talents Pavol Demitra and Chris Pronger are still in their prime. The Blues have overcome a rash of injuries to post an early Central Division lead.

"Ironman Triathlon" Saturday, Dec. 6 (NBC, 5 p.m. ET): The 25th anniversary of the Ironman Triathlon is celebrated in a two-part highlight special of the endurance odyssey, held in mid-October in Kailua-Kona, Hawaii. Colorado native Tim DeBoom was aiming to become the first man since Mark Allen in 1991 to win three straight titles, and Switzerland's Natascha Badmann was seeking her fourth consecutive win. A record 1,649 athletes from 46 countries competed. Part 2 airs in prime time.

Family Best Bets

Sunday

7:45 a.m. on AMC

Movie: American Graffiti

Director George Lucas' marvelously nostalgic 1973 comedy, about an eventful night for some 1962 California teens, was a great showcase for then-budding stars, including Richard Dreyfuss, Cindy Williams, Candy Clark, Mackenzie Phillips and Harrison Ford (in a brief but memorable appearance). The oldies-packed soundtrack is great; Ron Howard and disc jockey Wolfman Jack also appear.

3 p.m. on USA

Movie: Santa Who?

Leslie Nielsen stars as Santa Claus in a family comedy that puts a twist on the "Miracle on 34th Street" story. As in the 1947 classic and its remakes, he's a department-store Santa who's actually the genuine article. But unlike the Kriss Kringle of "Miracle," who knew he was real even if nobody else did, this Claus is clueless, thanks to a fall from his sleigh that left him with amnesia.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: Finding John Christmas

Peter Falk spreads his wings as an angel in this new holiday movie co-starring Valerie Bertinelli. When a man performs a heroic act, an emergency-room nurse (Bertinelli) suspects he may be her brother, who has been missing for a long time. With the help of an angel (Falk) and a photographer (David Cubitt), she goes in search of the nameless hero.

Wednesday

3:15 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Rookie of the Year

A 12-year-old boy (Thomas Ian Nicholas) becomes a major-league sensation when an accident renders him a phenomenal pitching arm. Naturally, he helps hurl baseball's hapless Chicago Cubs into the playoffs. Gary Busey, Dan Hedaya and Daniel Stern also star in this 1993 comedy that was Stern's rookie effort as a director.

Saturday

10 a.m. on TBS

Movie: Sleepless in Seattle

In Nora Ephron's 1993 romantic comedy about romantic destiny, a newspaper reporter (Meg Ryan) who recently became engaged becomes obsessed with meeting a romantic widower (Tom Hanks) after she hears him reminiscing about his late wife on a radio call-in show. Rosie O'Donnell and Rob Reiner also star.

5:30 p.m. on FAM

Movie: 'Twas the Night Before Christmas

"Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse..." Wrong! In this 1974 animated holiday film, a family of mice is definitely awake. When Albert (voice of Tammy Grimes), an intellectual young mouse, writes a letter insulting Santa Claus, the man in red decides to cancel Christmas deliveries to the entire town. Now, Albert must find a way to rectify the situation before hundreds of little children go without presents.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: It's a Very Merry Muppet Christmas Movie

Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and company mark the holiday season with a TV movie that borrows the theme of "It's a Wonderful Life." A banker (Joan Cusack) plans to tear down the Muppet Theater and build a nightclub, but Kermit tries to talk her out of it with help from a novice angel and his supervisor (David Arquette, Whoopi Goldberg). William H. Macy, Carson Daly, Kelly Ripa and the "Scrubs" cast have cameos.

TV Trivia

Sylvester Stallone ("Daylight") enjoys painting pictures, and often sells them to raise money and donates the proceeds to charity.

Jeff Bridges ("The Fabulous Baker Boys") sent his brother to the hospital during filming by almost breaking his sibling's hand.

Sunday Best Bets

7 p.m. and USA

Movie: Stealing Christmas

Tony Danza plays a criminal confused with Santa Claus in this new holiday movie. After fleeing from police when an intended robbery fails, he hides out in a small town where a businesswoman (Lea Thompson) mistakes him for the man she's hired to play Kriss Kringle. He decides to stay around for a while — possibly to rob the town's bank. Betty White co-stars.

7:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Bernie Mac Show

The sitcom's third season begins with "Eye of the Tiger," featuring basketball legend Shaquille O'Neal guest starring as himself. He figures into Jordan's (Jeremy Suarez) efforts to land a spot on the school basketball team — but the coach suggests Jordan might be more proficient in gymnastics.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Allias

Filmmaker David Cronenberg ("Dead Ringers," "The Fly") guest stars as a doctor supposedly able to help Sydney (Jennifer Garner) recover her lost memories in the new episode "Conscious." Jack and Vaughn (Victor Garber, Michael Vartan) observe the procedure, which may end up killing Sydney instead.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: Finding John

John Christmas (Valerie Bertinelli) ("Touched by an Angel") co-stars in this new drama movie with Peter Falk, who reprises his role from 2001's "A Town Without Christmas." She plays an emergency-room nurse who suspects an anonymous hero could be her long-missing brother.

8 p.m. on HBO

Carnivale

"The Day That Was the Day" wraps up the maiden season of the drama series. Feeling he has no other recourse, Ben (Nick Stahl) resorts to asking Lodz (Patrick Bauchau) for guidance.

Cassie then revealed that Kate, not Marlena, is their mother. Shawn was stunned to realize that he is related to his sworn enemy, Rex, and that Mimi knew all along. Later, when Cassie's body fell out of the turkey pinata at Salem Place, Kate was found standing there with a bloody knife. Victor threatened Nicole with losing everything when he brings Chloe back to Salem. Coming: Is Kate the Stalker - or has she been set up? General Hospital

Hearst enjoys emotional acting challenges

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

Ric Lansing (Rick Hearst) arrived in Port Charles with one thing on his mind - revenge. He wanted his brother, Sonny Corinthos (Maurice Benard), to suffer.

It didn't matter that Sonny had no idea that Ric even existed or that the man felt so betrayed.

Hearst says, "Ric wanted to take everything from his brother and rub his face in it, and it didn't matter that it wasn't Sonny's fault. Ric's whole world was one twisted lie, and it took the better part of this last year for him to see through that. Luckily for Sonny, Ric wasn't able to accomplish his goal, which was to destroy Sonny and everything his brother had."

Ric's relationship with Elizabeth Webber (Rebecca Herbst) is something that happened by accident, but they've become one of "General Hospital's" hottest couples.

"I think Elizabeth was an unexpected derailment for him," Hearst says. "She was something that kept him from doing what he felt he needed to do. Or at least made him think twice sometimes. She was a distraction. And this really wonderful thing happened between the two of them and they fell in love."

"He's now discovering tools in order to protect that kind of love. He's never had anything like this before in his whole life. He's never felt this way about another human being."

One of the most difficult story lines for Hearst to play this last year was the one that took place in the panic room. The scenes in the room were a turning point for the character.

"When he's standing over his wife with a pillowcase ready to smother her, that was terrifying for me to play as an actor," Hearst says. "That's a scary place to go to. But also as an actor, it's very gratifying."

"Now he's on the road to redemption, but that incident is something he'll carry with him always. I mean, he chained a pregnant woman to a wall. And put his wife in danger. No matter what he does, he won't be able to make up for that."

"He's in a place of having to get on in the world, but now I feel like he's thinking ahead before he makes any more stupid choices."

7 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: Mulholland Falls

Inspired by the true exploits of the so-called "Hat Squad" — an elite, nicely attired 1950s group of Los Angeles cops — director Lee Tamahori's ("Die Another Day") visually stylish 1996 drama casts Nick Nolte as the leader of that team. The large cast of familiar faces also includes Melanie Griffith, Chazz Palminteri, Michael Madsen, Treat Williams and John Malkovich.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Boston Public

Harper (Chi McBride) debates whether to get federal agents involved after learning of a student's Internet access to a terrorist Web site in the new episode "Chapter Seventy-Four." Prompted by a student's HIV-positive condition, Ronnie (Jeri Ryan) organizes a club for sexual-health information. Dana Wheeler-Nicholson ("Fletch") and Helen Slater ("Supergirl") guest star.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Hope & Faith

Hope and Faith (Faith Ford, Kelly Ripa) have to go to an anger-management class after they get into an argument with another player's mother (guest star Kelly Coffield Park) at Justin's (Paulie Litt) school basketball game in the new episode "Anger Management."

At home, Charley (Ted McGinley) tries to fix the garbage disposal, much to his children's dismay.

8 p.m. and DSC

MythBusters

There is such a thing as a "new car smell," which is relatively pleasant compared to another vehicular aroma that can be quite irritating — and can last and last and last. The genesis of such a smell is explored by "MythBusters" Jamie and Adam in the new episode "Stinky Car." Finding the answer may put the intrepid duo in more peril than they bank on.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

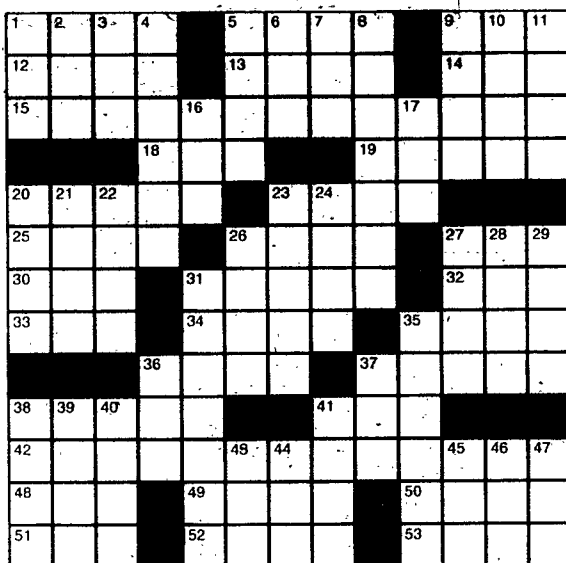

Third Watch

Nicholas Turturro guest stars in the new episode "A Ticket Grows in Brooklyn." He portrays a mobster whose standoff with a businessman (guest star Steven Randazzo) eventually requires intervention by Bosco and Monroe (Jason Wiles, Nia Long).

College Basketball

Even though UCLA is playing in the John Wooden Classic, this year's squad won't rekindle memories of the coach's legendary teams. The Bruins take on powerhouse Kentucky without four of their top five scorers from last season's 10-win team. Scoring for UCLA would have been at a premium, anyway, since much of Kentucky's success — including 26 straight wins last year — is built on team defense, led by senior guards Cliff Hawkins and Gerald Fitch.

7 p.m. and TNT

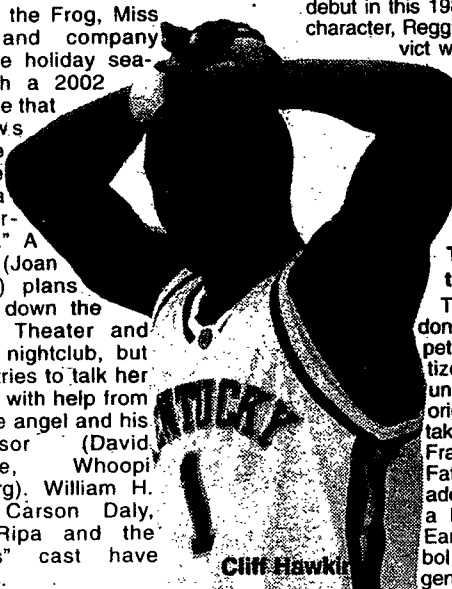

Movie: Word of Honor

Generally unseen since the end of his series "Nash Bridges," Don Johnson resurfaces in this new drama movie based on a novel by Nelson DeMille ("The General's Daughter"). The actor plays a businessman whose world may crumble as he faces a court martial 30 years after a Vietnam War crime committed while he was a lieutenant.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: It's a Very Merry Muppet Christmas Movie

Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and company mark the holiday season with a 2002 TV movie that borrows the theme of "It's a Wonderful Life." A banker (Joan Cusack) plans to tear down the Muppet Theater and build a nightclub, but Kermit tries to talk her out of it with help from a novice angel and his supervisor (David Arquette). Whoopi Goldberg, William H. Macy, Carson Daly, Kelly Ripa and the "Scrubs" cast have cameos.

9:05 p.m. on AMC

Movie: 48 HRS.

Eddie Murphy made his big-screen debut in this 1982 buddy comedy. His character, Reggie Hammond, is a convict with an unusual kind of work-release assignment: to partner with a police officer (Nick Nolte) seeking a cop killer whom Reggie knows.

10 p.m. on FAM

The Life and Adventures of Santa Claus

This 1985 special — done in stop-motion puppet animation — dramatizes one of the more unusual versions of the origins of Santa Claus, taken from a story by L. Frank Baum. Here, the Father Christmas-to-be is adopted by Immortals as a baby, then returns to Earth to become the symbol of holiday goodwill and generosity.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN: THE CURSE OF THE BLACK PEARL": One of the most popular attractions at Disney theme parks comes to life in producer Jerry Bruckheimer's eye-filling adventure, which succeeds partially because it doesn't take itself too seriously. The often off-beat Johnny Depp proves to be inspired casting as Jack Sparrow, a pirate enlisted by a young man (Orlando Bloom) whose true love (Keira Knightley, "Bend It Like Beckham") has been abducted by a cursed buccaneer (Geoffrey Rush). DVD extras: audio commentary by Depp and crew members; deleted scenes; outtakes.  (PG-13: P, V)

"BEETHOVEN'S 5TH": A search for stolen cash sparks the adventure for big, lovable dog Beethoven in this made-for-video sequel. The human cast is loaded with familiar television faces including John Larroquette, Faith Ford, Kathy Griffin ("Average Joe"), Dave Thomas ("SCTV") and Clint Howard. Daveigh Chase plays one of the kids keeping watch over Beethoven. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; interviews with cast members; bloopers.  (G)

"ALIAS: THE COMPLETE SECOND SEASON": Year two of the ABC espionage series offers a lot of surprises, especially in one episode that changes the rules for spy Sydney Bristow (Jennifer Garner), who learns that SD-6, the agency for which she works, isn't as pure of purpose as she had thought. This set of stories also introduces her long-lost mother (Lena Olin), whose reappearance doesn't inspire warmth on the familial front. Guest stars in the stories include Faye Dunaway, Ethan Hawke, Christian Slater, Rutger Hauer and comedian Richard Lewis. DVD extras: audio commentary on selected episodes; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes; featurette on "Alias" video game.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"STAR TREK: DEEP SPACE NINE - THE COMPLETE SEVENTH SEASON": The second spinoff of the original science-fiction series completed its run in syndication with this set of episodes. As they begin, Kira (Nana Visitor) is serving as commander of the wormhole-bordering space station in the absence of Sisko (Avery Brooks), who is back on Earth strategizing what his next move should be. Nicole deBoer ("The Dead Zone") joined the show here, following the departure of original cast member Terry Farrell. Notable guest stars in the tales include Jeffrey Combs ("Re-Animator"), John Colicos ("Battlestar Galactica"), Adrienne Barbeau, James Darren, Penny Johnson ("24"), Wallace Shawn ("My Dinner With Andre") and Oscar winner Louise Fletcher. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries.  (Not rated: AS, P)

"THE BEN STILLER SHOW": The son of veteran comics Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara is now a movie actor and director, but he displayed his early creativity in this critically praised and Emmy-winning - yet short-lived - Fox series. The sketch-oriented show also features Janeane Garofalo, Andy Dick and Bob Odenkirk ("Mr. Show"). Among the targets of the skits are "Beverly Hills, 90210," "Star Trek," Tom Cruise, Woody Allen, Bruce Springsteen and U2. Garry Shandling, Dennis Miller, David Cassidy, Rob Morrow ("Northern Exposure") and Adam West are among guests. DVD extras: audio commentary by Stiller and other cast and crew members on selected episodes; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes; "E! Behind the Scenes" special.  (Not rated: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

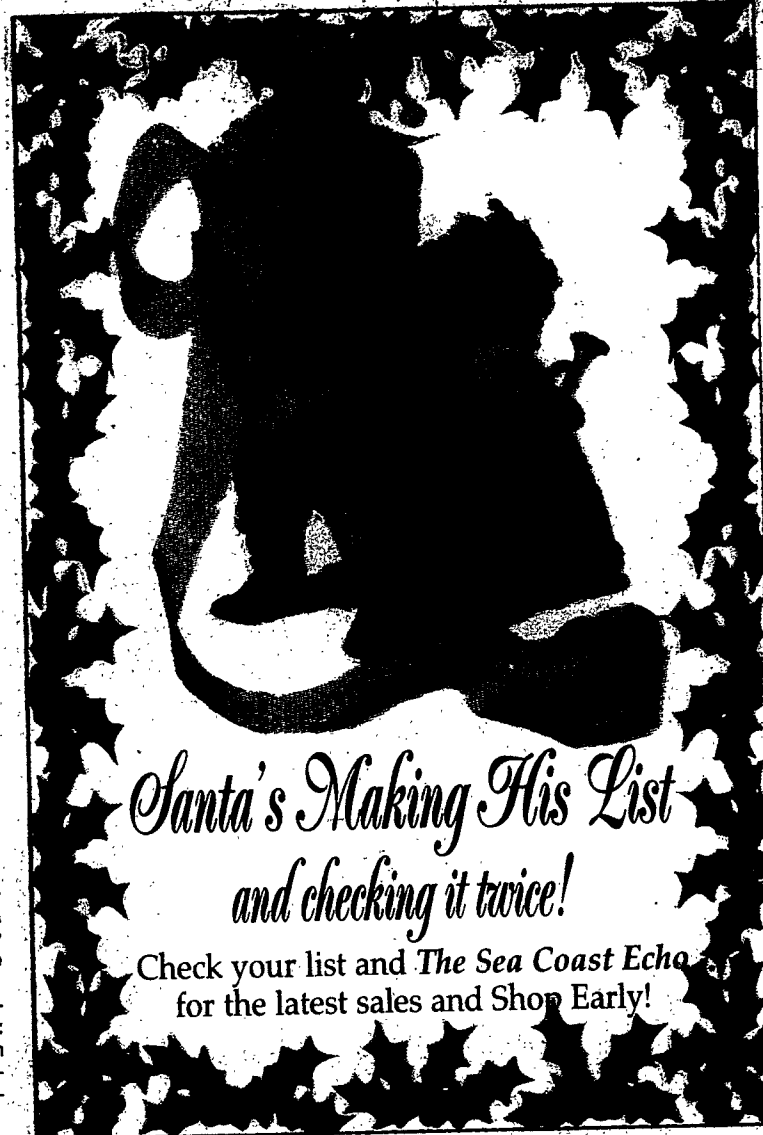

"BAD BOYS II" (Dec. 9): Will Smith and Martin Lawrence are reunited as Miami police detectives out to stop a drug kingpin whose wares are leaving a lethal trail. (R: AS, P, V)

"GIGLI" (Dec. 9): When a gangland minion (Ben Affleck) seems unable to complete an assignment, a female counterpart (Jennifer Lopez) is brought in to finish the job. (R: AS, P, V)

"HOW TO DEAL" (Dec. 9): Singer-actress Mandy Moore plays a teenager struggling to cope with her sister's impending marriage, a friend's pregnancy and other assorted crises. (PG-13: AS, P)

"FREAKY FRIDAY" (Dec. 16): Jamie Lee Curtis and Lindsay Lohan play a mother and daughter who magically switch bodies in this remake of the Disney-studio comedy. (PG: AS, P)

Stahl brings well-honed craft to occult drama 'Carnivale'

"Carnivale," the occult drama set mainly within a traveling sideshow during the Great Depression, has taken its own sweet time in revealing the secrets behind its unsettling story lines.

And don't look to its leading man, Nick Stahl, to give up any major surprises as "Carnivale" wraps its first season Sunday, Nov. 30, on HBO. The young actor and his castmates are still awaiting word as to whether there will be a second season for their series.

"I probably shouldn't tell you too much, or the writers will come after me," Stahl says, "but there is some closure, in a way."

"There are some real changes that take place, but it definitely leaves some big things up in the air. We'd definitely need a second season, because some things are left hanging, but certain characters do go through fundamental changes by the end of the season, which I think is very cool."

"Carnivale" premiered in September to mixed notices, and the show's generally bleak tone and very deliberate pacing have drawn criticism from some reviewers. Critics have been unanimous, however, in their praise of Stahl, who gives a galvanizing performance as Ben Hawkins, an 18-year-old fugitive taken in by the carny folk. This enigmatic young man has mysterious healing powers that come with a terrible price, and Stahl inhabits the character so vividly that viewers can sense Ben's personal pain and world-weariness even before he opens his mouth.

It's a complex performance, especially for an actor who has yet to turn 24, but Stahl says he instinctively connected with Ben as soon as he read the pilot script for "Carnivale."

"I've learned to trust my instincts when I read something, and usually my first impressions are the strongest," the Dallas-reared actor says.

"It was important to me that this was a period piece. In order to sell the reality of this character, I knew I would need to get rid of what I think are modern tendencies people have as far as how they walk and talk. I think a lot of actors forget about that when they do a period piece, and it always gives them away to me."

"For me, this character was living in a very different time from our own, and had had experiences and qualities that could definitely come through in the cadence of his speech and the way he walks. I made a big effort to incorporate all that into my performance."

"Carnivale" marks Stahl's first TV series role, although he did a few TV movies earlier in his career. It was a little disconcerting, he admits, playing a character in the middle of such strange events but not knowing from script to script where Ben was heading.

"I read the script, and it was unlike any TV show I'd ever seen," Stahl says. "I wasn't a huge fan of television, in that there wasn't a show I'd watch every week, no appointment shows. I was just more a movie fan."

"But that's one of the things that appealed to me about that first script. It was a very cinematic 'read.' We spent six months filming the season, a real marathon."

"It was very exciting, because every week we'd get a new script, not knowing at all what was going to happen. If we asked them directly, the writers might tell us something, but it was like getting gold from them," he laughs. "But every week, it just seemed to get better and better, so that offered its own rewards. It was a lot of fun to see it play out."

Stahl started on his career course at age 4 when he became so excited by a children's play his mother had taken him to that he immediately announced he wanted to be an actor. After several stage appearances, he made his professional debut at 10 with Robert Urich in the TV movie "Stranger at My Door." Another TV movie with Pamela Reed quickly followed, then Stahl was hand-picked by Mel Gibson for a co-starring role in the 1993 feature film "The Man Without a Face."

Since then, Stahl has proven his diversity in projects ranging from Terrence Malick's combat drama "The Thin Red Line" to art-house films such as "In the Bedroom" and the controversial "Bully" to this year's sci-fi action blockbuster "Terminator 3: Rise of the Machines."

Somewhat along the way, Stahl even wound up on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera house, playing the spoken role of Puck in a 1996-97 production of Benjamin Britten's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

"I stumbled into that because my agents told me it was a Broadway play," Stahl laughs. "Actually, this is an ultimate example of how L.A. relates to theater - or doesn't, I should say. So I show up, thinking it's a play, and I find out it's an opera, but I decide to audition anyway."

"Somehow I got it, but then I immediately wondered what I had gotten into because it was two and a half months of grueling rehearsal. It turned out to be fun, though. At the end of the show, they 'flew' me offstage, which had always been a childhood dream. I'm, uh, over that now."

While he waits to hear whether "Carnivale" will get a second season, Stahl is enjoying his first real down time in nearly three years.

Ben Hawkins (Nick Stahl), a teenage fugitive with eerie powers, is center stage of HBO's drama "Carnivale," which folds the tents on its first season on Sunday..
